This year I went to Methodist Conference for a couple of days. I confess that I have never been before. I went, not as a representative, but as a spectator. You might not think watching a few hundred Methodists debate issues such as Trusteeship, Ministers' Housing, Finance, Property (each interrupted by Notices of Motion and Points of Order) would be particularly absorbing, and yet as I observed I found myself going through a gamut of emotions: inspiration, joy, frustration and even anger. It was a strange place to be.

Yet on the Wednesday morning Conference I shared a communion service in which those who had served the church in various capacities, both lay and ordained, but who had now gone to glory, were remembered. In front of me sat a couple who I knew. Their son was on the list of remembered people, and as we reached that point in the service, they stood and wept uncontrollably.

And then something wonderful happened - nothing to do with process or agenda, finance, stationing or growth plans - it was simply that those who were sat around the bereaved couple moved a step closer to them; held a hand; placed an arm around a shoulder; wept with them. And I realised that it was going on all over the hall - the Methodist Church quietly and profoundly held all those who were hurting.

In one sense it was nothing extraordinary; it is what happens again and again, week in, week out, but goes mostly unnoticed. People who are wounded are held by others through a hug, a prayer, shared tears, a telephone call, a well written card. No answers or explanations are given, only space offered where pain can be named. And it is important that the pain is named: grief, hurt, anger, doubt, loss, despair, anxiety. For as we name it we remember that it is known by God and held by God.

We have been thinking in recent weeks about our purpose and calling as a church, and I think, to put it simply, we are to be the presence of God to each other, to our communities and to the world.

We are not a business that must be grown, nor institutions to manage; we are not a club that some belong to, nor a 'members only' establishment. No, we are the Body of Christ; God's presence in human form, and so we hold the hurting, love the loveless, give a voice to the voiceless and declare that all are welcome - without qualification.

I know that business meetings and conferences are necessary but, in truth, we fulfil our purpose as a church when we love and are loved.

‘Abide in me,’ says Jesus, ‘and I will abide in you’; and ‘Love one another, as I have loved you’.

I wonder what our worship, our meeting agendas, our budgets would look like if our starting point was such love? Maybe there would be no change maybe we are already fulfilling our purpose as God’s presence in the world maybe?

Helen.

Our Calling

The calling of the Methodist Church is to respond to the gospel of God’s love in Christ and to live out its discipleship in worship and mission

It does this through

- Worship
- Learning and Caring
- Service
- Evangelism

CHURCH WELCOME PROJECT

AB (After Brian)

Brian Latham, as Chair of the Church Welcome Project, lived to see us receive enough funding to prepare to start the work he had championed from its earliest days. The trigger to start looking for a contractor and updated estimates was the £24,000 grant awarded by funding body WREN. With Methodist funding from Circuit, District and Connexional funds plus our own fund-raising, it meant that we have been promised £90,000 towards the £105,000 estimated cost of the scheme.

Shortly before his untimely death, Brian had started the next process of getting more accurate quotes and encouraging contractors to engage with the project. That process is continuing. Once complete, we will know the precise figures and the outstanding gap that we need to fill. To that end, in addition to the fund-raising team's planned programme of events, we will have a GIFT DAY on Saturday, 10th November. More details and options of help will be communicated nearer the time.

When we appoint a contractor and get detailed quotes, we will then be able to firm up the actual timing when the work will be done. We have, however, made a commitment to Derrick Matthews that it will certainly be finished before next May's annual organ concert!

Back to our grants, and the awarding committees of the District, Connexion and WREN have all expressed excitement about the nature of the project. As our Church Welcome Project brochure explains, the project is, "To provide the rapidly growing Aylesbury town centre with an attractive, accessible, meeting place, able to offer a warm welcome, simple refreshment and a listening ear."

Penny Horne, WRENs local grant manger, says: "We are delighted to be supporting the Aylesbury Methodist Church Welcome Project and pleased that our funding will provide such a fantastic facility for the local community. WREN is always happy to consider grant applications for projects that make a difference to local communities and we're really looking forward to seeing this one take shape soon."

WREN is a not-for-profit business that awards grants for community, biodiversity and heritage projects from funds donated by FCC Environment through the Landfill Communities Fund and Scottish Landfill Communities Fund. WREN was established in 1997 and since then has provided over £200m to more than 7,000 community and environmental projects throughout the UK.

We are very grateful to WREN and all our grant awarders. Our job now is to get the work done, complete the funding and deliver the project to make a difference to the communities we serve, as Brian, his team and the church council, intended. YOU can help with your prayers and support in the exciting and challenging time ahead.

WELCOME, SHIRLEY

Following Carla Barnes' decision to move to pastures new after a very successful time as the Community Centre Bookings Co-ordinator, we have appointed Shirley Francis to the new post of Office Administrator.

As well as centre bookings and other office duties, Shirley will also provide some administrative support to the Circuit.

Asked to give a bit of background about herself, Shirley wrote, "I joined the Aylesbury Methodist Church as Office Administrator on 5th June, a role that I am really enjoying, particularly as it allows me to meet members of the diverse community who use the Centre, as well as communicating with them. I spent most of my working career in local government in Aylesbury. I enjoy assisting in fund raising activities for Action for Children, the Florence Nightingale Hospice and Royal Star & Garter Homes for retired servicemen. My hobbies include reading, playing the saxophone and allotment gardening and other voluntary community related work".

So: Welcome, Shirley! We wish you a very long and happy stay with us.

J TEAM

Welcome to the J Team pages

What should we do when we must make an important decision or when we would like help?

In Matthew's gospel of the bible it says:

"Seek and you will find, ask and it will be given to you, knock and the door will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives; the one who seeks finds; and to the one who knocks, the door will be opened." Matthew 7:7

"Seek" - the first thing we should do when we have a decision to make or need help is to look for the answer. Where should we look? We can look in the bible for answers. The Bible is God's word and it is true and reliable.

"Ask" - The next thing we should do is to ask. When we have an important decision, we should pray and ask God to tell us what we should do.

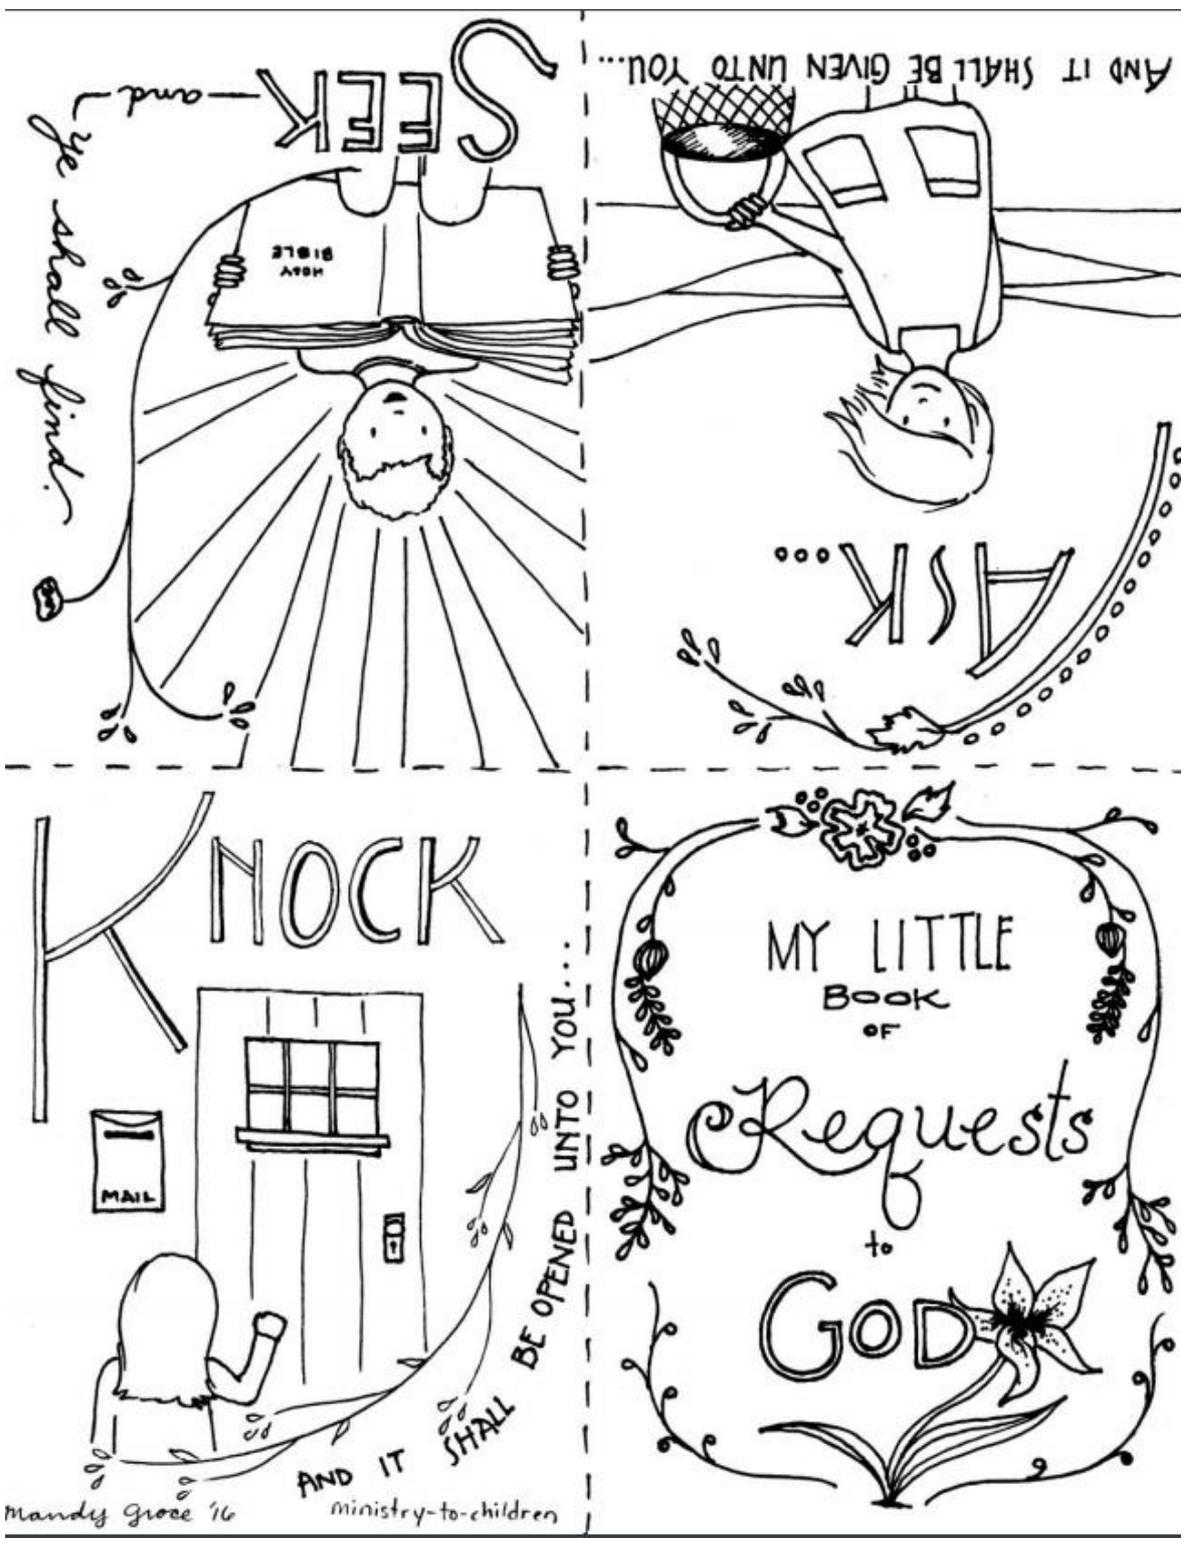

"Knock" - We will face many doors of opportunity in life. When there are several doors and we don't know which to choose, we should knock on the door (pray) and wait to see if God opens that door.

He may not answer prayer the way we want him to, but he will answer the prayer better than we ever thought, because He knows everything!

Follow God's Word Maze

Photocopy this booklet and colour the pictures in. Then cut along the dotted lines to make the booklet. You can use it to write your requests or decisions that you would like to pray to God about.

Dear God,
Help us to remember to ask you for the answers to the difficult decisions that we face each day.

END OF DAY

The sun has set in true majesty,
And slowly the temperature drops.
The air around begins to cool;
Almost imperceptibly at first.
Then you feel a slight breeze
Upon your bare arms.
Enough to give you goose bumps,
and you shiver involuntarily.
The darkening chill has surprised you.

Earlier, you had been walking
Through dense woody forests,
Drinking in the heady bouquet
Created from myriad bluebells -
Truly one of our God's most Exquisite floral creations -
Their velvety purple trumpets
Releasing the purest of scents,
Which no perfume can replicate.

As your eyes become accustomed
To the now gathering dusk,
You can see little lights
Winking in the shadows.
Then as the darkness deepens,
Glow worms start up
A nightly dance ritual.
It is almost like a message
Sent in Morse code.

A rhythmic clicking sound
Can be heard from deep within
The dense woodland,
As crickets announce that
They are all around,
And ready for a night of love.
Slowly this fades into silence.
Suddenly you jump, as an owl
Sends out a lonesome hoot.

A subtle mist begins to rise
From the damp forest floor,
Draping the bushes and trees
With an eerie white ghostliness;
Wrapping itself all around,
Like an imaginary mantle.
Soon the first rays of morning sun
Pierce through the canopy,
To start a brand-new day.

METHODIST CONFERENCE

There will be those among LINK readers and across the Circuit who do not understand the term 'Methodist Conference'; the following paragraph is the official explanation.

The Methodist Conference is the governing body of the Methodist Church under God. It has responsibility for the government, discipline, oversight and administration of the church. Members of Conference hold a trustee responsibility. It also has a place for worship, thanksgiving, celebration and the full Reception of Presbyters and Deacons. Ordination services are held in churches round the region. The business of the Conference is done, and decisions are made, by seeking the will of God through conferring together. The 306 members of the Conference are representatives, not delegates and include some from our partner churches overseas. There are also a further 24 non-voting Associate Members: 6 representing ecumenical partners in Britain and 18 from our World Church partners.

For a number of years now, and for various reasons, I have had the privilege of being at Conference, which is held in different parts of the country and in places I might not have visited: they have stretched from Edinburgh to Torquay. For a number of years I was a trustee of the charity CLEM and we used the market place at conference to sell the colourful items made by the women in Bolivia. With a loaded car we would set off to various destinations to set up our stall, just as Joy Murphy now does with the Karibuni items. On others years I have combined this with various events to do with Methodist Women in Britain, formerly Women's Network. We campaigned hard to get a seat at Conference so that, whatever the makeup of district representation, women's voices and opinions were heard. The role is fulfilled by the current President, although this year she is on an overseas visit to Fiji and her place is taken by an agreed substitute.

It is possible, as a visitor, to observe the proceedings of Conference and have the opportunity to attend fringe events such as those held by AllWeCan and Action for Children; these are held either at lunchtime or in the evening. It has become the custom on alternate years (it is a 2year post) to induct the new president for MWiB at an event on the Friday evening before the main Conference; on the alternate years a different event is staged. This year as we looked ahead to a new partnership, looking at hearing impairment in worship, we invited a group who 'sign for worship' to come and talk about their work and share worship with us.

It is at Conference that the new President and Vice President of the Methodist Conference are inducted. This happens on Saturday afternoon to a packed audience, where the worship and song are very uplifting. This year history was made as it was the first time a woman handed on the baton (Cross) to a woman. On the Sunday, at Conference worship, the new Presbyters are presented and accepted before their ordination at various locations.

I find meeting with other Methodist people from across the Connexion, attending fringe events, catching up with the latest news, watching some of the proceedings, and attending the two main Saturday and Sunday events, interesting and encouraging. Others may not agree with me!

Ruth Watkins.

Love thy neighbor

No Exceptions!

- thy homeless neighbor
- thy gay neighbor
- thy Muslim neighbor
- thy black neighbor
- thy immigrant neighbor
- thy Jewish neighbor
- thy addicted neighbor
- thy Christian neighbor
- thy atheist neighbor
- thy disabled neighbor

Jesus didn't make exceptions.
We don't either!

Thank You, God, for little things that often come our way --
The things we take for granted but don't mention when we pray --
The unexpected courtesy,
the thoughtful, kindly deed --
A hand reached out to help us in the time of sudden need --
Oh, make us more aware, dear God,
of little daily graces
That come to us with 'sweet surprise' from never-dreamed-of places.

HOLY HUMOUR!!

While travelling in Pennsylvania, a family caught up to an Amish carriage. The owner of the carriage obviously had a sense of humour, because attached to the back of the carriage was a hand printed sign... "Energy efficient vehicle: Runs on oats and grass. Caution: Do not step in exhaust."

A minister waited in line to have his car filled with fuel just before a long holiday weekend. The attendant worked quickly, but there were many cars ahead of him. Finally, the attendant motioned him towards a vacant pump. "Reverend," said the young man, "I'm so sorry about the delay. It seems as if everyone waits until the last minute to get ready for a long trip." The minister chuckled, "I know what you mean. It's the same in my business."

People want the front of the bus, the back of the church, and the centre of attention!

Memories of a Maths Exam

Whenever I sing the hymn, 'Dear Lord and Father of Mankind', I am reminded of a maths exam.

"What are your favourite subjects?" the Headmaster asked, when I was in the third form (now known as year nine) at school. Without a moment's hesitation, I answered, "English, History and Biology."

"What about Chemistry?" he asked.

In my second year there, I had been taught Chemistry by Mr Pearce, who used the discovery method to teach science and was an inspired teacher. He did not believe in the examination system, but still ensured that we all got high marks. Perhaps the Head already knew that I had got 90% at the end of the previous summer term. His degree was in Chemistry and he knew that this Technical High School was stronger on the science side.

"What about aiming for a course in Biology, Chemistry and Physics in the sixth form," he said.

"I'm no good at Physics," I said.

"Well, maybe you could divide your biological studies into Botany and Zoology, in your final year," he said.

The school leaving age was then fifteen and many girls left before even taking 'O' levels. He must have been concerned that so many bright pupils lost this opportunity in life and he was keen to build up the sixth form, so he encouraged those of us near the top of the class to sit for some 'O' levels at the end of the fourth form and then go straight into the sixth.

On return from the Christmas holidays, when I was in the fourth form, we were informed before lunch that we were to do our mock maths exam that afternoon. I sat in a bemused state, with my mind still thinking about the home I had left, over forty miles away and the family I should not see for another six weeks. I got 13% for that paper, but nevertheless, sat for my 'O' levels that July. I failed Maths, but still started my 'A' levels, as planned. Miss Shepherd coached me on Monday afternoons, after school and I resat Maths in the November. One morning in January, I was told during a lesson with her, that I was to report to the Head's office for the result.

"Good Luck," said my classmates. "We hope you've passed this time."

"She had better," said Miss Shepherd with a smile, "for I don't want to teach her anymore." Poor Miss Shepherd, I'm sure she must have regretted saying that, for I had failed for the second time. I cried bitter tears on my own, for I saw that my timetable would continue to be almost impossibly full, for several more months.

Once again, that summer, I was back in the examination hall. Next door, the rest of the school were beginning the day with assembly. I heard them singing, "Take from our lives the strain and stress, and may our ordered lives confess the beauty of Thy peace." I took up my pen and prayed for God's calming influence.

I did pass that exam and went on to successfully study Botany, Zoology and Chemistry at University. I would not be without my scientific background but still love English and History. Perhaps, the most lasting impression left by that experience is, though, how important it is in times of stress to remember the words of that hymn.

CAN YOU PRESS THE RIGHT BUTTONS?

As you may know, since 18th March, we have been filming and live streaming our 10.30am Sunday services. So, anyone with an internet connection can see and listen to our services on YouTube via their iPad, laptop, smart phone, smart tv or desktop device. Each service is available to view for a week before being replaced by the next service.

This is all courtesy of the Joseph Rank-funded Christian charity, thesundayservice.co.uk. It is also courtesy of our camera operators.

Currently, there are four of us – Harry Darku, Albert Odro, Solomon Awadzi and me. You will note that we are all fellas. Yet this is an equal opportunities role so if any of you ladies would like to join us I'd love to hear from you. Or more fellas as well come to that.

To qualify, you need to be able to count to 8, press a button and read.

Counting to 8 is because there are eight pre-set shots of the camera that is fixed to the choir side of the gallery. The shots include the pulpit, lectern, choir, the walls the hymns are projected on to and a wider shot as shown here. To move the camera from say, the pulpit (shot 2) to say the lectern (shot 4), involves pressing number 4 and then the Shot button on the keypad. It's as easy as that. The reading is to absorb the four-page training document. This covers filming and safeguarding policies (page 1), three filming guidelines and photos of the pre-shots (page 2), how to operate the camera key pad with photographs (page 3) and how to sort out any problems (page 4).

Solo describes the system as, "Straight forward to operate." Albert agrees. "The system is good and straight forward." He added, "What I have learnt is that you have to concentrate very hard to get the shots at the right time, so you follow the service in the right way."

As a reminder, our Filming Policy is on the Policies section of our website and includes these words: "To maintain a welcoming and safe environment for children, young people and vulnerable adults, we have adopted the following policies. They are designed to ensure that the only people seen on screen are those who have given their permission to be filmed."

Now that we have the safeguarding and technical issues all sorted, we will be producing a rota soon. If you fancy being on it after training, do please call me (01296 424653) or email me: peterb.green@ntlworld.com.

If you want to see how the current operators are doing, look at our last recorded service. You can either go to YouTube and search for Aylesbury

Methodists, or go to our website (www.aylesburymethodists.org.uk) and click on the link on our Home Page or go to www.thesundaysevice.org and scroll down to Aylesbury Methodists. If you can do any of that, you are very well qualified to be one of our camera operators. I'm sitting by the phone, waiting for your call!

Martini Prayers

I know you say that
You just haven't the time
In this busy world,
In your hurried day,
To stop for a moment
And be quiet and peaceful;
To close out all worldly noise,
And just listen to His voice.
But you can make time;
All you need is to try.

First, stop what you are doing.
Then still your mind.
Shut out all distractions
And listen to His wonderful words,
As He speaks deep within your soul.
It is an Awesome feeling
To know that God, Our Father,
Is communicating with you.
That He not only created you
But wants to talk to you.

Gradually, over time,
You will learn to respond;
To talk to God yourself.
It really is a wonderful feeling.
You don't need a church.
Be free. Use the sunshine
And the beautiful world He created.
Then have a 'Martini Prayer'.
Anytime, Anyplace.
Anywhere.

Circuit Youth Event!

The Circuit Youth Event was held on July 7th; the same day that England triumphed over Sweden in the World Cup!

We kicked off the evening with prayer and worship led by Casey Leigh and the band from Aylesbury Vale Community Church. The band helped to create a wonderful atmosphere throughout the evening, giving a brief tutorial on how to play the drum box to a beat, and the groups were taught a worship song which they sang at the end of the evening.

Donna encouraged the groups to think about and give thanks for the things they were good at, and she led them in prayer about the areas they thought they needed to develop.

Keith shared a talk on Psalm 139:14, expanding on our theme, 'Be the best version of you', whilst Mel pulled out her acting skills, encouraging the groups to follow suit.

All in all, a wonderful time was had by all who attended. Friendships were formed and faith was encouraged.

A Gift Rather than an Apology

'They are a gift to ensure your friendship'

Genesis 33:8

Here's something you need to know in order to move forward. The person who hurt you may never offer an apology in the manner you desire.

After Jacob cheated his brother Esau out of his birthright, things got so bad between them that Jacob went to live with his Uncle Laban in Haran. Later in life, when both brothers had become wealthy and successful in their own right, Jacob decided to seek reconciliation with his brother.

At first Esau refused to accept his brother's gifts, but when Jacob persisted, 'Esau finally accepted the gift' (v. 11 NLT).

Notice, Jacob never said, 'I'm sorry I stole your birthright; please forgive me.' Basically he said, 'I'd like to try and make amends.' At this point Esau showed real maturity by valuing his relationship with his brother over his right to exact revenge. So the family was united.

There's a lesson here. God wants you to grow up and exercise spiritual maturity. You can't control what others do; you can only control your response. Furthermore, if you insist that someone apologise to you – in a certain way – the relationship may never be healed. As a result, you'll be left holding a grudge. And holding a grudge is like holding a hot coal; it will keep burning you until you let it go. For example, you may want your husband to apologise for his behaviour. But if instead he buys you a gift or does something extra nice for you, respond with grace instead of judging either his methods or his motives. In other words, 'close the account' and move forward.
