

Roy Collis has received this letter from Action for Children

"We're at breaking point...

We hear all the time from families who have had the support they rely on taken away due to a lack of national direction and funding.

Sadly, we know that children are bearing the brunt of this disappearing support, which is why we at Action for Children have joined forces with other leading children's charities to call on the Government to take action.

Your MP can play a part to help push the issue up the agenda.

Politicians across all parties are vital to pressing the Government to take action. Which is why we're holding an event in Parliament, where MPs can learn about what's happened to support for children in their area.

We know that many are concerned and we hope to equip all MPs with the evidence they need to demand the Government take urgent action in this year's spending review.

Your MP needs to know what's happening in your area. Will you invite them to our event? On Tuesday 26th February there will be a drop-in event with Action for Children, Barnardo's, the Children's Society, the National Children's Bureau and NSPCC, from 12pm-2pm in Room W3 off Westminster Hall where they can receive tailored information about children's services in our area as well as the demand they are currently facing.

We know there's a lot going on at the moment, but this simply can't wait. No child should have to wait until they are at crisis point before they get the support they need."

If you use the following link, you can email your MP directly. It shows Roy Collis's name in the letter, but you just click on 'I'LL CONTACT MY MP' and you can complete the form in your name so that an email is sent, adding any other points you wish to make. (Or look at the charity website).
